IF

your heart is stirred by what you are about to read... Please don't set it aside or push it away. That stirring is more than a feeling—it's an invitation. God has placed His heart within you, not to carry the weight of saving the whole world, but to love and serve the one person He puts in front of you.

You've been entrusted with the heart of Jesus—to see the overlooked, to reach out when others turn away, to do for the one what we all wish we could do for the many.

What you hold in your hands isn't just information. It's an opportunity to step into the kind of love that changes stories, changes futures, and sometimes changes eternity.

Transforming Lives Through Faith and Compassion

“Religion that God our Father accepts as pure and faultless is this: to look after orphans and widows in their distress...” — James 1:27

AS I look back on 2024, I'm overwhelmed with gratitude—for God's provision and your unwavering support. Because of your generosity, hundreds of families in Karatu, Tanzania, are rising out of poverty and walking in hope. Through goats, gardens, and the Gospel, lives are being transformed every single day.

Together last year, we:

- Equipped 576 families with livestock, mentoring, and faith-based training
- Empowered over 1,500 children to attend school, eat well, and thrive
- Shared the Gospel with more than 21,000 people across Karatu
- Reached over 180,000 listeners with teachings on vertical farming and self-reliance
- Strengthened our staff and community leaders through powerful discipleship gatherings

And yet—we know there's still more to do. In 2025, we are turning our focus toward refining our impact. We're taking time to evaluate our programs more deeply, looking for ways to help families bear fruit faster—so they can break free from cycles of poverty, stop striving, and step fully into God's plans for their lives.

We want to be faithful stewards of the resources God has entrusted to us. Before we expand to new areas, we're committed to building a solid foundation where we are—ensuring every family we serve is deeply supported and equipped to reach their God-given potential.

God willing, we will complete construction of the creamery and fully open our Farm and Innovation Center—offering immersive visitor experiences, sustainable tourism packages, and even greater community impact by the end of 2025.

“And God is able to bless you abundantly... so that you will abound in every good work.”

2 Corinthians 9:8

Thank you for standing with us. Your faithfulness is setting families free and planting seeds of lasting change. You amaze me and move me forward every day. I am beyond grateful and without words. With love,

Founder & Executive Director

Where we serve

Our vision

Love like Jesus. Empower families. Eliminate Poverty.

Our mission

To share the Gospel, equip and inspire families, restore relationships, and transform communities.

"A world where every family thrives through faith, sustainable agriculture, and economic empowerment."

TANZANIA

This is not a handout—it's a hand-up. And with your help, we are healing what's been broken. One family at a time. One relationship at a time.

“No one is too poor, too far, or too broken for God’s love—so they’re never too much for us.”

Worth the cost

AT Food for His Children, we are called to serve families living in ultra poverty—those whom the world often overlooks or deems too hard to reach. These families are beyond what’s typically defined as extreme poverty. They live in remote villages, often surviving on less than 70 cents per day, facing not only material lack but also deep spiritual, emotional, and relational brokenness.

We meet them at the hardest point in their journey—not just lacking income, but lacking hope. Many organizations say they’re too poor, too isolated, or too complex to serve. But we choose them—because every single one is a priceless child of God. Christ already paid the price. No one should ever be told they’re not worth the cost.

We believe with every ounce of who we are that God has a place for them. He sees them. He loves them. He never intended for them to be alone, hurting, or in desperation. That’s why we go. That’s why we stay. And that’s why we walk with them—step by sacred step—until restoration takes root.

*“He lifts the poor from the dust and the needy from the garbage dump.
He sets them among princes.”*

Psalm 113:7–8 (NLT)

Restoring what was broken

How Food for His Children Heals Poverty Through Relationship

Poverty is more than the absence of money. It's about broken relationships—with God, self, others, and creation. Our work is rooted in restoring these relationships to bring holistic transformation to families living in extreme poverty.

When a mother sees herself as valuable, her children as a blessing, and her land as a gift to steward, she begins to rise. That's why we don't just give out goats or teach business skills—we invest in people, walk alongside them, and help them rediscover dignity, purpose, and hope.

Transformation is slow and sacred—but we've seen it. And with your help, we're walking with families in extreme poverty—every step of the way.

Restoring Relationship with God — Healing Spiritual Poverty

Through discipleship, pastoral care, Bible studies, and Christian outreach, families learn they are known, loved, and made for a purpose. This spiritual foundation becomes the bedrock of transformation.

"For I know the plans I have for you," declares the Lord...

Jeremiah 29:11

Restoring Relationship with Self — Overcoming Emotional & Personal Poverty

Through Case Management and Goal Planning, families begin to dream again. Families receive coaching, set life goals, and participate in Street Business School and skills training. As they achieve milestones—building homes, starting businesses, sending children to school—they begin to see themselves as capable and valuable.

"I praise you because I am fearfully and wonderfully made..."

Psalms 139:14

Restoring Relationship with Others — Healing Relational & Social Poverty

Through savings groups, community training, and roles like Farmer Motivators and Paravets, neighbors learn to trust and support one another. Community bonds grow strong as people rise together.

"Carry each other's burdens..."

Galatians 6:2

Restoring Relationship with Creation — Reversing Material & Physical Poverty

With goat microloans, vertical farming, composting, and climate-smart agriculture, families learn to care for the land and produce sustainable food. They steward God's creation with wisdom and hope.

"The Lord God took the man and put him in the garden... to work it and take care of it."

Genesis 2:15

Where hope takes root

Suzanna's Story: From Desperation to Dignity

WHEN

we first met Suzanna, she welcomed us with the biggest smile you can imagine. Her joy was radiant—shining through the pain she'd carried, the trauma she'd endured, and the burdens she still bore. That day, she told us her story from the edge of her small brick home in a remote Tanzanian village, miles down a dusty, rugged path lined with goat and cow traffic jams, young children guiding livestock barefoot across dry earth. What she shared was hard to hear—but harder still to imagine living through. Her husband had given her an ultimatum: leave, or he would hurt the children. Suzanna made the only choice a mother could. She fled with the youngest two and left the older boys behind—hoping to return for them quickly. But the boys ran away to find her. They were just 7 and 9 years old, wandering through town trying to board a bus with no money, no adults, and no one who believed them. When they were turned away, they tried to survive on the streets—hauling goods, begging for food, doing whatever they could.

They eventually split up. One son returned. The other, Gerson, has never been seen again.

She lost a child in order to save the others. And yet—Suzanna's story didn't end there.

Finding Her Way Back

After years of heartbreak, isolation, and abuse, Suzanna returned to Karatu determined never to leave her children again. She tried to reconcile with her husband for the sake of her family, but the pattern repeated—broken promises, more violence, and finally, abandonment. He left her with nothing.

But Suzanna still had one thing: her faith.

She prayed. She pressed on. And then she connected with Food for His Children.

She was hesitant at first—building her own goat shed by hand after her husband refused to help. When her first goat died, she didn't quit. When her second gave birth to twins who didn't survive, she kept going. And in December 2024, she was blessed with two healthy baby goats—new life, new beginnings.

"See? The Plan Worked!"

Rebuilding Her Life, One Braid at a Time

When we sat with Suzanna under a shady tree, she began braiding my hair—laughing, smiling, talking about her dreams.

It wasn't just about style; it was about healing. This wasn't a salon. There were no dryers, no mirrors, no polished tools—just gifted hands and a heart that had been through the fire.

She never used to charge for her braiding. "I thought I wasn't good enough," she said. But her case manager, Loveness, saw the gift and gently encouraged her to try. Just 500 Tanzanian shillings at first. Then 1,000. When the women in her village didn't hesitate to pay, Suzanna lit up:

"See? The plan worked!"

Today, Suzanna has more customers than she can handle. On weekends, 7-10 women come to her small home for appointments she now books in advance. She's learning to track expenses and grow her business through FFHC's Street Business School. And she's launched a second business—selling vegetables—while preparing her land to begin vertical gardening.

From Invisible to Influencer

Not long ago, Suzanna felt like a burden. Her friends disappeared when she had nothing. People avoided her. But now? Neighbors visit. Customers line up. And Food for His Children selected her as a Farmer Motivator—a leader and role model in her community.

She's gone from isolated to influential. From unseen to empowered. From barely surviving to joyfully thriving. And she gives God all the glory.

"I'm not successful yet," Suzanna says, "but I've changed. I've been through so much—and now I can put food on the table. I can care for my children. I have peace of mind. That's success."

The Journey Isn't Over

Suzanna still has dreams. She wants to expand her salon business. To grow fresh vegetables year-round through vertical farming. To help others in her village do the same.

And most of all—she still hopes and prays to find her missing son.

Her story is still being written.

And because of generous partners like you, she isn't writing it alone.

OUR ORGANIZATION IS BUILT ON THE VALUES OF

The foundation of our core value structure is our faith in God's grace, love, and power, which are manifested through the life of Jesus Christ and illuminated by the Holy Spirit.

HOPE

Our programs are guided by Scripture to instill hope in the lives of the families we serve. Hope that is rooted in the certainty of God's goodness and that empowers people to fulfill their potential.

LOVE

We believe that love drives our mission. Our purpose is to love God with all our hearts, our souls, and our minds. Then to love our neighbors as ourselves.

INTEGRITY

We vow to always be honest and fair in all of our actions. Our conduct must exemplify the way Christ taught and lived.

DIGNITY

We believe in the inherent worth and value of every person, created in the image of God, deserving respect, love, and justice. This belief encompasses the sanctity of life, human rights, and the moral responsibility to act with compassion and integrity.

THESE VALUES ARE EXPRESSED THROUGH

Restoring Relationships: We believe all poverty stems from broken relationships—with God, self, others, and creation. Healing these relationships is at the heart of everything we do, helping individuals and communities become all that God created them to be.

Fostering Transformation: True change occurs when individuals, families, and communities are empowered to thrive through restored relationships and sustainable solutions.

OUR GUIDING PRINCIPLES are firmly grounded in biblical truth

FAITH

Now faith is the assurance of things hoped for and the conviction of things not seen
Hebrews 11:1

HOPE

Yes, my soul, find rest in God; my hope comes from him. Truly He is my rock and my salvation; He is my fortress, I will not be shaken.
Psalm 62: 5-6

LOVE

Love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your strength and with all your mind. And love your neighbor as yourself.
Luke 10:27

INTEGRITY

Dear Children, let us love not with word or tongue but with action and in truth.
1 John 3:18

DIGNITY

So God created human beings in his own image. In the image of God he created them; male and female he created them.
Genesis 1:27

At our Farm and Innovation Center, families see all of this in action. It's a place of hands-on learning, innovation, and inspiration—where tourists, local leaders, and families experience the beauty of transformation. It's where poverty loses its grip and hope takes root.

"They will be called oaks of righteousness, a planting of the Lord for the display of His splendor."

Isaiah 61:3

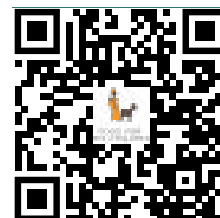

Child & Family partnerships

"Two are better than one, because they have a good return for their labor: If either of them falls down, one can help the other up."
Ecclesiastes 4:9-10 (NIV)

Rogath, "I'm in 3rd grade. My dream is to become an engineer."

Erick, "I am 10 years old. My dream is to become a teacher."

Sicilia, "In many African communities, especially Tanzania, many girls lack basic rights and opportunities such as education. This is due to tradition or customs and economic conditions in families. My dream is to be a doctor. Please stand with me."

Irene: "I am in kindergarten at KKKT Lutheran. I love math, counting, reading and writing. I want to be a pastor."

Poverty isn't just physical—it's emotional, relational, and spiritual. That's why Food for His Children builds long-term partnerships between families in Tanzania and individuals around the world who want to walk with them toward wholeness.

$75/month Family Partnership equips an entire household with discipleship, case management, goat and agriculture training, business skills, savings groups, and access to health insurance—supporting families as they work toward lasting transformation.

$21/month Child Partnership provides the resources a child needs to grow strong in body, mind, and spirit. This includes health care, spiritual mentorship, nutrition support, school supplies, and tools that help their family create stability at home.

You don't have to go to Tanzania to walk with a family or child on their journey out of poverty. You just have to say yes.

Because the greatest impact isn't just the services—it's the mutual encouragement, faith, and dignity that grow through genuine relationship. In these partnerships, transformation flows both ways.

One such partnership began with a simple step of faith—and grew into a friendship that changed two lives...

Meet agatha and holly

Walking Together in God's Story of Restoration

"To have faith is to be sure of the things we hope for, to be certain of the things we cannot see."

Hebrews 11:1 (GNT)

Something stirred deep in Holly's spirit—an undeniable tug that she couldn't ignore. She didn't know what it meant yet, but she knew she had to follow it.

In 2022, that yes led her across the world to the hills of Karatu, Tanzania, where she met a woman named Agatha.

Agatha's name had stood out to Holly before she ever saw her face. Out of the many family stories she had read in preparation for her trip, it was Agatha's that lingered in her heart. So when she saw Agatha's name on her family visit list, she knew God had orchestrated something special.

"I can't...carry the full weight of her needs forever," Holly says. "But I can be a catalyst for change...As she grows in confidence and capability, my role shifts—but our connection remains, because of our God and His divine connections."

What she didn't expect was the depth of hardship she would encounter. When Holly and her teammate Christine arrived at Agatha's home with field officer Loveness, they were met with overwhelming need. Agatha was gravely ill. Her children were also sick. Even the goat—a key part of Food for His Children's program—was struggling, unable to nurse its newborn. Agatha's home, a failing mud-stick structure, was close to collapsing. Because of his choices, her husband was taken from the family without hope of return, leaving Agatha alone to care for six daughters under the crushing weight of stigma and poverty.

And yet, in that space of suffering, something sacred happened: connection. Holly prayed with Agatha. She listened. She stayed. And somewhere in that quiet presence, a deep friendship took root.

Later, the community rallied. With guidance from Food for His Children, neighbors came together to help rebuild Agatha's home. And still, God was not finished.

When Holly returned in 2024, she was desperate to see Agatha again—to know how she was holding up. What she found was a mother still weary, with little access to consistent work or food. The weight of survival showed in her eyes. Holly felt paralyzed by the need.

"I couldn't see a way out," Holly later recalled. "It was all too much. Too overwhelming. My mind spun as I tried to prioritize what needed to happen first."

But a fellow FFHC ministry team member asked a simple question: "Can you sew?" It was enough to spark something. A vision. A possibility. A lifeline.

Today, Agatha is enrolled in sewing school, supported by Holly through a family partnership. Her village does not have a seamstress—a trade that is both valuable and sustainable in Tanzania. For Agatha, this is not just skill development. It's dignity. It's provision. It's hope.

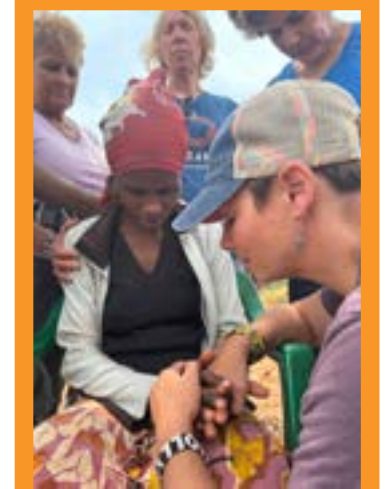

And for Holly, it's transformation too.

"I can't—and shouldn't—carry the full weight of her needs forever," Holly says. "But I can be a catalyst for change, helping her build a foundation for long-term stability. As she grows in confidence and capability, my role shifts—but our connection remains, because of our God and His divine connections."

Holly plans to return to Tanzania in October to celebrate Agatha's graduation—with joy, with tears, and with the kind of celebration that shows a village what's possible when one woman dares to hope again.

"Carry each other's burdens, and in this way you will fulfill the law of Christ."

FAITH & DISCIPLESHIP

Restoring dignity through the Gospel:

Faith is the foundation for lasting transformation—not just in our relationship with God, but with ourselves, others, and creation. Through discipleship, Bible study, and pastoral care, families discover who they are in Christ: “fearfully and wonderfully made” (Psalm 139:14), deeply loved, and created with purpose. As they learn what God says about marriage, parenting, friendship, and stewardship, their relationship with self is healed, and their relationships with others are rebuilt on grace and truth (Romans 12:10). Even their relationship with creation is restored, as they begin to see farming, work, and provision as part of God’s good design (Genesis 2:15). Faith doesn’t just shape beliefs—it changes lives, restores dignity, and offers a new identity rooted in Christ (2 Corinthians 5:17). The Gospel truly is good news for the whole person.

MILESTONES ON THE PATH TO FLOURISHING

Tangible progress in restoring what poverty has broken

These indicators reflect real transformation—not just in income, but in dignity, stability, and hope. As families begin to thrive, we see the restoration of their relationship with self, as they discover they are “fearfully and wonderfully made” (Psalm 139:14). Relationships with others are strengthened through coaching, mentoring, and community support, echoing the call to “carry each other’s burdens” (Galatians 6:2). Improved housing, hygiene, and health reflect a renewed relationship with creation, as families learn to steward their homes and land (Genesis 2:15). And as they recognize God’s provision in their daily lives, their relationship with Him is deepened—trusting that “my God will meet all your needs” (Philippians 4:19). These numbers aren’t just outcomes—they’re signs that wholeness is being restored and poverty is losing its grip.

FOOD FOR HIS CHILDREN

Good health and nutrition are the foundation for escaping poverty. When children are sick, they miss school — and in places without books or online access, missed lessons often mean missed futures. One failed exam can end a child's education. For adults, illness means no income, and choosing between food, medicine, or school fees. In extreme poverty, health isn't just personal — it's survival, opportunity, and hope.

LIVESTOCK & INCOME

Our goats are more than milk—they're a path out of poverty.

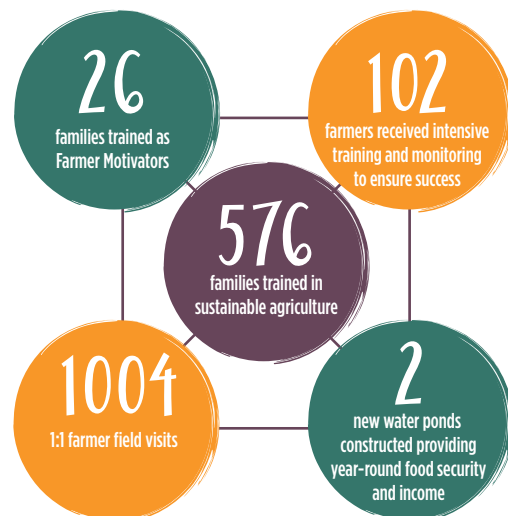

A goat is more than a gift—it's a tool God uses to restore what poverty has broken. It provides milk for nourishment, offspring for income, and fertilizer for farming, but its true value is in how it helps heal the four broken relationships. As families care for their animals and land, they step into their role as stewards of creation (Genesis 2:15). Their relationship with self is renewed as success brings dignity and purpose (Psalm 139:14). Goats are shared and passed on to others, strengthening community bonds and restoring relationship with others (Acts 2:44-45). And through every provision, families are reminded of God's faithfulness—deepening their relationship with Him as the ultimate provider (Philippians 4:19). One goat. Four relationships. A path out of poverty—by God's design.

CLIMATE-SMART AGRICULTURE

Growing food, faith, and financial resilience

Sustainable and climate-smart agriculture does more than grow food—it heals what poverty has broken. As families learn to steward their land wisely, they begin to restore their relationship with creation, living out God's call to "work it and take care of it" (Genesis 2:15). In seeing barren soil produce life, their relationship with self is renewed—they recognize their God-given ability to provide and thrive (Isaiah 55:10-11). Sharing harvests and knowledge strengthens their relationship with others, echoing the early church where "they shared everything they had" (Acts 4:32). And as they give thanks for each harvest, their hearts turn upward—restoring their relationship with God, the ultimate provider (Psalm 104:14). Every seed planted is an act of faith. Every harvest, a witness to redemption.

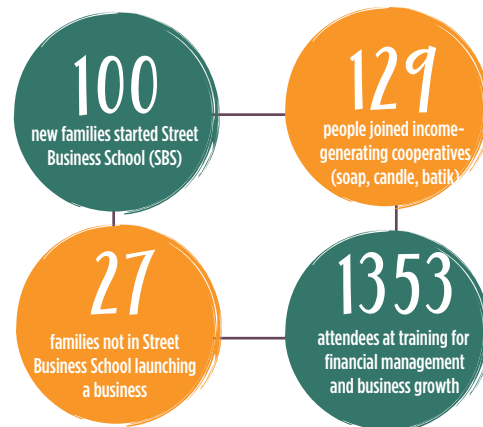

Celebrating impact

Empowering families. Equipping communities. Elevating hope.

ENTREPRENEURSHIP & ECONOMIC GROWTH

From classroom to commerce

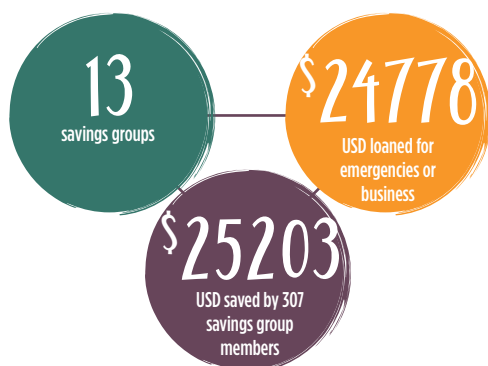

Entrepreneurship training and income-generating activities are restoring families' relationship with self, as they discover they are "fearfully and wonderfully made" (Psalm 139:14)—capable, creative, and called to steward resources with purpose. As they launch businesses and join cooperatives, their relationship with others grows through shared effort and mutual support, living out the truth that "two are better than one" (Ecclesiastes 4:9). With a foundation in faith, they begin to view their work as worship—restoring their relationship with God by using their gifts for His glory (Colossians 3:23). Every product sold, every shilling saved, is a testimony to what's possible when brokenness is exchanged for God's redemptive hope.

SAVINGS GROUPS

Financial resilience is a key outcome

Savings groups do more than build financial resilience—they build trust, dignity, and community. As families save and lend together, they restore their relationship with others, forming deep bonds of mutual support and accountability (Ecclesiastes 4:9-10). With every deposit, members grow in confidence and stewardship, restoring their relationship with self as they recognize their ability to plan for the future (Proverbs 21:20). These groups also model God's design for interdependence—where needs are met through shared responsibility and generosity (Acts 2:44-45). It's not just money that's growing—it's hope, stability, and a vision for what's possible when we walk in restored relationships.

FARM & INNOVATION CENTER (FIC)

A hub for training, innovation, and impact

The Farm & Innovation Center is more than a training site—it's a living testimony to what's possible when brokenness is met with hope. Here, FFHC families, community members and visitors from around the world experience practical solutions and biblical principles woven together. As they learn to care for animals, grow crops vertically, and steward land with excellence, their relationship with creation is renewed (Genesis 2:15). Side by side with others, they grow in trust, generosity, and shared purpose—restoring their relationship with others (Acts 4:32). Hands-on learning builds confidence and dignity, helping individuals rediscover their identity and value—healing their relationship with self (Ephesians 2:10). And through every teaching, tour, and training, hearts are pointed back to the Creator who provides it all—restoring relationship with God and inviting others into His redemptive story (Psalm 24:1). The FIC is more than a farm—it's a seedbed for transformation.

1. Visitors from China, Canada, Germany and the USA including students from International schools, tourists, and 2 Impact teams from Hosanna Church in Minnesota.

2. 50 arches, 15 grape arbors, 5 vertical structures, and demonstrated 6 different vertical garden modalities (trellises, arches, raised beds, plastic bottles, multi-tiered and sacks)

Be the hands & feet

This isn't Charity. It's Family.

*"And my God will supply every need of yours according to his riches in glory in Christ Jesus."
Philippians 4:19*

WHEN

you partner with a child or family through Food for His Children, you're not just giving support—you're building something eternal: a relationship.

Years ago, my family partnered with two sisters in Tanzania—Neema and later, Nabana. That connection made us family with their mother, Ngasera, and siblings, including a little boy named Shamburi.

I still visit them regularly. Every time I arrive, Shamburi smiles wide and says: "Thank you for being part of our life."

But there's another relationship that shaped him. As a child, he had a sponsor—a boy his age from another country. They exchanged notes, photos, and glimpses into each other's worlds. Simple letters, powerful impact.

Last year, outside his mud-and-stick home in the Maasai Mara, Shamburi pulled out a tattered letter; faded, soft with time. Inside was a photo and a note about a home near a lake in Indiana.

Nearly two decades later, he still treasures that letter. Still remembers that friend. Still hopes to reconnect.

"Do you know him?" he asked. "Can you help me find him?"

That's the power of true relationship. It outlasts programs. It goes beyond aid. It becomes part of your story.

This is why we created the Child and Family Partnership Program—to build bonds that transform lives. When you partner with a family, you're not just sending support—you're stepping into their lives, praying together, celebrating progress, and walking alongside them.

Because the deepest poverty isn't just financial. It's spiritual. It's social. It's emotional. And the antidote is relationship.

Because the deepest poverty isn't just financial. It's spiritual. It's social. It's emotional. And the antidote is relationship.

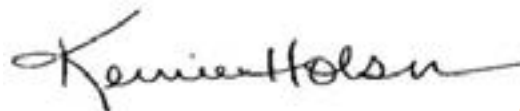

Your monthly gift equips a family with tools—goat farming, business education, agriculture, and more. But just as importantly, your presence helps heal spiritual and social poverty.

It restores dignity. Builds confidence. Rebuilds relationships—with self, others, and God.

This is the Gospel in action. You can be that friend. That encourager. That lasting memory.

Start your journey today. Because sometimes, the most powerful thing you can give... is you.

With blessings,

Future Plans: A Vision Taking Root & Handmade Hope

CRAFT MARKET

BY the end of 2025, we hope to open a vibrant Craft Market at the Farm and Innovation Center—a space where artisans from the families we serve can showcase and sell their handmade creations directly to visiting tourists. From jewelry crafted from recycled metal to shoes made from tires and traditional pottery, this market will celebrate Tanzanian creativity and provide families with a new, dignified source of income.

But it's more than just a place to shop—it's an experience. Visitors will not only meet the makers, but also watch live demonstrations and even take part in hands-on workshops, learning the beauty of local crafts and the stories behind them. This unique offering is unlike anything else in Karatu and will create lasting impact for both tourists and families—one handmade piece at a time.

THE CREAMERY

IN 2025, we hope to break ground on one of the most exciting parts of our long-term vision: the Food for His Children Creamery. This will be more than just a building—it will be a place of opportunity, training, and transformation. Designed to process goat milk into cheese, yogurt, and gelato, the creamery will help families turn the milk from their goats into a sustainable income stream—while also serving as a training hub in dairy processing and agribusiness.

We'll build it the Tanzanian way: step by step, brick by brick, as God provides. We'll lay the foundation first. Then, as funds come in, we'll raise the walls, install equipment, and bring this dream to life—just like our families do when building their own homes.

When complete, the creamery will serve as a vital income-generating project for FFHC and a tool to help families rise out of poverty with dignity and purpose. It will reflect everything we believe: stewardship, sustainability, and God's provision, unfolding one faithful step at a time.

"Unless the Lord builds the house, the builders labor in vain."

Psalm 127:1

We're trusting God to provide the first $13,300 needed to lay the foundation.

Want to do more than just read the story?

YOU can be part of it. Whether you join an Impact Team to serve on the ground in Tanzania, volunteer your time or talents from home, or partner with a child or family each month, there's a place for you in this work of restoration.

When you give $21/month, you walk with a child toward a brighter future. For $75/month, you come alongside an entire family as they move from survival to stability—equipped with goats, training, mentorship, and the love of Christ.

And if your heart is calling you to go, we'd love to welcome you to Tanzania. Impact Teams experience our programs firsthand, build relationships with families, and serve in meaningful ways that align with their gifts.

However God is leading you, we invite you to take the next step. Let's walk together—one family, one relationship, one restored life at a time.

Why supporters like you choose legacy giving.

and more of our supporters are telling us the same thing. "I want my giving to last beyond my lifetime." Legacy giving isn't just about finances. It's about putting your values into action in a way that endures.

By including Food For His Children in their estate plans, these generous individuals are creating a path for families to move from surviving to thriving. They're choosing to be part of a long-term story of hope, one where faith, dignity, and opportunity grow year after year.

Many people are surprised to learn how easy it is to include a legacy gift, and even more are surprised by how fulfilling it feels. If you've ever thought about what your legacy might look like, you're not alone. We'd love to talk with you about what's possible.
